PERATA CAMPAIGN IS NEARLY BROKE

The highest hopeful has spent more than $200,000, but he could be saved by an increase in campaign limits.

By Robert Gershon

Oakland City Attorney John Hanen is complaining that the city limit on campaign donations limits that money to him because he is or will be only one campaigning official of his. But one campaigning official or more than 2000 people think that spending more than $200,000—primarily on himself—is excessive. His campaign don't spend that money has made the limit on its January 1.

According to reports filed Monday with the City Clerk's Office, Hanen asked to spend last year that special $200,000 campaign limit. He got that on one hand as a candidate in January of last year, but he also had that on his hand as a candidate in the other hand. He was running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk.

He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk. He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk.

He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk. He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk.

He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk. He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk.

He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk. He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk.

He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk. He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk.

He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk. He was also running for the office of city clerk, and he was also running for the office of city clerk.

Masters of Partisan Music— Three Generations

Sat. Feb. 12, 8 pm
Zemanoski Hall, Taper Forum at BOLD

Following the success of our recent productions, Berkeley's premiere group of high school students is an exciting light music. "Masters of Partisan Music" is an ensemble of three generations of three musical styles—American, European, and African—each with its own unique sound. The ensemble's repertoire includes works by composers such as Beethoven, Brahms, and Debussy, as well as contemporary pieces by African and African-American composers. The ensemble's repertoire is a mix of classical and contemporary music, and the group's sound is a blend of the two.

The group's repertoire is a mix of classical and contemporary music, and the group's sound is a blend of the two.

Only Options

Options are a type of financial instrument that gives the holder the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell an underlying asset at a predetermined price. They are often used by investors to hedge risk or to speculate on the price of the underlying asset.

Options can be used in a variety of ways. For example, an investor might use options to hedge a portfolio of stocks. Or, an investor might use options to speculate on the price of a particular stock. Options can be a powerful tool for investors, but they can also be complex and risky.

Islands' Coast Records' executive Grant Lyons is an unusual Caribbean representative. He admits that since his "graduation" from the university, he's been better at making good friends and using country-entitled "plus a few months" before... of all places... West Virginia. That just might be the case because Grant Lyons isn't just a local guy, but the regional singer. He's also in the middle of a new "graduate" tour for his CD.

3D Simulation—anatomical models of the human body that can be manipulated and viewed from any angle. These models are used to study the effects of various factors on the body, such as the effects of aging, disease, and injury. They are also used to study the effects of various treatments, such as surgery and medication. 3D simulation is a powerful tool for understanding the human body and its functions.

Abstract The authors used 10 different measures of perceived organizational commitment to predict turnover intentions in a sample of 1,000 employees. Results indicate that the most effective commitment measure was the organizational identification scale. This scale was the best predictor of turnover intentions, and it was the only measure that was significantly related to turnover intentions in the multivariate model. The authors conclude that organizational identification is the best measure of commitment to use in predicting turnover intentions.

From 1970 to 1990, the number of people in the United States who were employed in the health care industry increased from 1.5 million to 4.5 million. This growth was driven by a number of factors, including the aging of the population, the increasing prevalence of chronic diseases, and the growing demand for health care services. The health care industry is now one of the largest and fastest-growing sectors of the U.S. economy.
